

Three Borders Landmark - Argentina

Destination: Iguazú

Description

In the middle of an inviting and stimulating landscape of the Parana and Iguazu rivers junction, there's a milestone with the shape of an obelisk. Exhibiting the colors of the Argentinian Flag (light blue and white), it represents the limit of our national territory.

From this place it is possible to see Brazilian and Paraguayan soil, where two other obelisks, each with the colors of its national flag, can be seen.

From here you can also see the Tancredo Neves International Bridge, connecting Argentina (Puerto Iguazu city) to Brazil (Foz do Iguacu).

There are just a few places in the world where you can find three countries merging together.

It is the ideal place to shop in its small handicraft shops and enjoy the dancing water and light show every day at sunset,
